

Kyle Shea is an avid fly angler and tyer from Bar Harbor, Maine. Originally cutting his teeth guiding fly fisherman on his home waters in Maine, he now spends his summers guiding on the Kanektok River at Alaska West where he targets both trout and salmon with single and two handed rods. His winters are spent writing and taking photos for Deneki Outdoors while stationed at Andros South Bonefish Lodge in the Bahamas. Currently, he is also a contributing writer for Fish Alaska Magazine.
